| FIRST WORD, FROM THE FILINGS

THE SIGNAL

We read the public data the rest of the world ignores — and tell you what's coming before it's news.

ISSUE 001 · JUNE 2026 · a Brief Scout Media intelligence brief

THIS WEEK WE SCANNED: 14,210 trademark filings · 392 SEC Form Ds · 9,540 building permits · 1,118 FCC authorizations · 2.1M customs records.
6 of them matter. Here they are.

PRESENTED BY MERIDIAN DATA PARTNERS · SAMPLE SPONSOR

Most media reacts to the announcement. We read the filing that comes before it. Every company has to leave a paper trail in public records — to protect a brand, raise money, build a building, import a product, ship a device, hire a team. Read those trails together and the future stops being a secret. Below: this week's strongest signals, the read on each, and our confidence. For investors, operators, journalists, and the relentlessly curious.

◆ LEAD SIGNAL · TRIANGULATION

A funded robotics startup is 90 days from a retail launch — and nobody's reported it

[Illustrative composite: "Cumberland Robotics"]

USPTO	Filed 3 trademarks last month — including a logo mark. Companies file logos right before launch, not during R&D.
FCC	An equipment authorization for an unreleased wireless device — with a confidentiality request expiring in ~75 days. Expiry ≈ launch window.
CUSTOMS	First import bills of lading from a contract manufacturer overseas — 4 containers in 60 days. They're making units, not prototypes.
HIRING	Just posted "Head of Retail Partnerships." DTC startups don't hire retail unless shelves are the plan.

THE READ Four boring filings, one obvious conclusion: a funded hardware company is shipping a consumer device to retail in roughly a quarter. You now know before their PR firm does. Confidence: High.

| SIGNALS THIS WEEK · ILLUSTRATIVE

Trademark tells

A [Fortune 100 food company] filed marks in the non-alcoholic spirits class — its first ever. The read: a zero-proof brand is coming to a category it has ignored. Conf: Med-High.

Just funded (SEC Form D)

[Quietco], a stealth [climate-hardware] startup, reported a $24M raise — no press, no TechCrunch. Named officers include two ex-[BigCo] engineers. Conf: High (it's a filing).

Breaking ground (permits)

[National coffee chain] pulled 6 build permits across 3 metros it has never operated in — a market entry, mapped block by block before the first store opens. Conf: High.

Import shifts (customs)

[Apparel brand]'s shipments from [Country A] fell 70% while [Country B] appeared for the first time — a supply-chain re-route that front-runs the next earnings call. Conf: Med.

Hiring tells

[Legacy automaker] is hiring 14 roles with "agentic AI" in the title, all reporting to a new VP. Strategy leaks through org charts before it hits the keynote. Conf: Med.

▽ THE FADE · WHAT THE DATA SAYS IS DYING

A WARN notice + a 90% collapse in inbound shipments + three quietly deleted job posts say [DTC category darling] is in real trouble — months before the obituary. The same records that catch a launch catch a fade. Conf: Med-High.

≈ PATTERN OF THE WEEK · THE MACRO READ

We counted 340+ new LLC formations this quarter with "[recovery / longevity]" in the name, clustered in [Sun Belt metros] — a category forming in real time, one filing at a time, that no trend piece has named yet. Single signals are noise; counted at scale, they're a forecast.

| THE SIGNAL PRO

The brief is the highlight reel. Pro is the machine: run the screens yourself, and set a standing alert on any company, category, or zip code — get pinged the moment a new trademark, Form D, permit, FCC filing, or import record hits. The intel desk that used to cost six figures, in your inbox. [$XX/mo · sample]
